Monochromatic Components in Random Graphs

Deepak Bal

Montclair State University

We are concerned with the following Ramsey-type question: if the edges of a graph are r-colored (not necessarily properly), what is the largest monochromatic component (or path, or cycle) which must appear? We address this question for random regular and random k-out graphs. This is joint work with Michael Anastos.